

2011. Atlas of Amphibians and Reptiles in Florida. Final Report, Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission, Tallahassee, Florida. 524 pp.).

Adult male observed basking on a log around 1000 h. The abundance of algae on the carapace (75% of surface area) suggests this is not a recently released captive. This is the first reported occurrence of G. ernsti in the St. Johns River Basin. This species is native to Florida in the extreme western panhandle over 300 miles distant. Even though this particular species is not sold as frequently in the pet trade as the Red-eared Slider (Trachemys scripta elegans) and the False Map Turtle (Graptemys pseudogeographica pseudogeographica) it is possible that this animal was a released pet. Wekiwa Springs State Park provides suitable habitat for this species. Graptemys ernsti could potentially thrive in such a diverse and turtle-rich ecosystem.
